In Washington they offer a queer explanation of Carl Schurr's opposition to John A. Logan. It seems that both Shurr and Logan were members of a select siag party at the house of a prominent senator one evening, and that during the informal entertainment provided, somebody, knowing Schurf's accomplishments as a planist, eaked blim to favor the company with The "Hermitage" and the grounds of the late President James E. Polk are places of intorest to visitors. The tomb of Polk is in the yard in front of the house, which is now occupied by his widow, who is at the advanced are of 60 years. We rang the bell at like door of the great old mansion, which was answered by a sable servant, by whom we sent our card to Mrs. Polk, who returned a message that she would be glad to receive us. On entering the room we was surprised to see such a youthful looking woman, who is still beautiful and graceful, possessing a charm of manner that many of the young might envy. Eald she: "Although I never go, into society, and have not since my dear hasband's death, I am glad, when not suffering from rhevmalism, to see my friends. I am pleased to have the representatives of such a journal as the Inter-Occan call upon me. I read the daily papers and am interested in the political events of the day. I am sometimes surprised at myself, that at my time of life I should be so interested in the affairs of State, for they are all gone of my day and generation, and I am only waiting the Master's call. We live here in the old bouse, my niece, Mrs. George Falls, her husband, and their daughter, Sadle Polk Falls.

She continued: "You know we had no children of our own; so my aniece to cure, they would inmediate— PARE

She continued: "You know we sam, which we sell on a positive guar-had no children of our own; so my niece has been our child, and her daughter, who is now just seventeen, and who will graduate this summer, is our household idel. Many of these pictures you see are the work of her brush."

The handsome mother of the beautiful daughter entered the room, and after exchanging gracings, I remarked: "We were speaking of your daughter," "Yes," said Mrs. Falls, "we are proud of Sadle. Here is her last work," a painting in full of "Psyche," which was artistically executed, and a marvel of beauty. Said Mrs. Polk: "Sadle, too, is a fine musician, possessing a marvelous volce. I wish you could hear her sing. I often come into the parior to welcome her young friends, for I want them to feel they are welcome here, and if I was not present they might think they were disturbing the old lady."

During last summer Mr. Falls and her daughter were in New York. Mora, the photographer, saw the young lady, and gained her consent to alt for a picture. The artist draped her hat and aboulders with white tulle, and the picture resembled a fairy queen. The young lady entered as we were saying adleu, and I did not wonder that artists wished to copy that lovely face, for ahr is beaucopy that lovely face, for shr is beau-

In the centre of the parlor mantel was a printed copy, in a frame, of of President Polk's first message to both houses of Congress of the United States of America, delivered in the city of Washington, December 2, 1845. In another frame was a printed copy of his inaugural address. Beside this stood a gilt frame which contained a piece of silk embroidery done at the Salem Institute, North Carolina, in the year 1818, by Mrs. Polk. A life-size portrait of President and Mrs. Polk, by Healy, adorned the walls of one of the parlors; also portraits of Washington, Madison, Monroe and Jackson. Mrs. Falls remarked: "You see, the Presidents are well represented here." thing periaining to a first-class Stationery Store, Stationery of all varieties, Serap Books, Autograph Albums, Fancy Looking glasses, and Picture Frames, and in fact, fancy notions of all kinds.

We also began on band a fire line of ed here.'

This large, old-fashioned house, with its heavy Corinthian columns is the home of culture, refinement, comfort and content. The garden walks are lined with blossoming tulips, and we brought some away as souvenirs of our pleasant visit to Mrs. James K. of our pleasant visit to Mrs. James K. ### THE STAR OF BETHLEHEM.

The theory concerning the "Star of Bethlehem? is based on a poetical foundation, having little to support it. In the year 1572, Tycho Brahe, a Dutch astronomer, discovered a new star near Caph in the constellation Cassiopea. It increased in brilliancy Cassiopen. It increased in brilliancy until it was as bright as Venus, and could easily be found at noon-day. It continued to shine brightly for a month, then gradually graw dim, and in sixteen months disappeared from view. It was looked upon as a new creation or a sun on fire, and the general ordinary was that it would never the statement of the continued to shine brightly recommended by the Harrison Markine Wirtz, Between Will, Historian Markine Wirtz, Between Will, Will Historian Markine Wirtz, Between Will, Will Historian Markine Wirtz, Between Will, Will Historian Markine Wirtz, Between Wirt eral opinion was that it would never again shine in the star depths.

Forty years later the telescope was levented. When it was turned to the position in the heavens occupied by position in the heavens occupied by the blazing star, a minute star was found near the identical spot. This telescopic star is still there, and doubtless the same one that blazed forth in 1572. The discovery that it existed led astronomers to search astronomical records, and it was found that similar bright stars had appeared in the same region of the sky in 945 and 1284. Counting back three periods from 945, we are brought to the near vicinity of the birth of Christ. Observers gifted with poetic fancies have naturally connected the two events, and have inferred that the star in the east, pointing to the place star in the east, pointing to the place of the Nativity, was a sudden out-burst of this wonderful star. For this reason it has received the name of the

About twenty-four of these temporary stars have appeared in the last 2,000 years, subject, like the star in Cassiopea, to sudden outbursts, fol-2,000 years, subject, like the star in Cassiopea, to sudden outbursts, followed by a return to their normal insignificance. They are now classed as variable stars, subject to sudden outbursts due to eraptions of blasing hydrogen, and which are fullowed by fong periods of utlescence. According to this theory, the star of 1572 is a wariable star, with a period of a few more than 500 years. The hast period was 508 years, if the bright star of 1584 was one and the same; we may therefore hope for a repetition of the incomprehensible phenomenon in the innecliate future. The star was due in 1580; if it appears at all, it will surely blaze forth by 1885. There is a possibility, therefore, that the long-last Star, the star of 1572, or Tycho Brabe's stary—for it is known by all these dame—will once more be a shining wonder in the sky. Sugh a celestial visitor will be warmly welcomed by astronomiers, and far more acceptable than a great comet spanning the heavens with its gossamer tail.—
